THE WHOLE SYSTEM

May Become Invaded by Catarrh—General Lewis' Case.

Hon. James Lewis, Surveyor General of Louisiana.

Pe-ru-na Drug Mfg Co., Columbus, O.: "Gentlemen—I have used Pe-ru-na for a short time and can cheerfully recommend it as being all you represent and wish every man who is suffering with catarrh could know of its great value. Should I at any future time have occasion to recommend a treatment of your kind, rest assured that yours will be the one. James Lewis."

Wherever the catarrh is, there is sure to be a waste of mucus. The mucus is as precious as blood. It is blood, in fact. It is blood plasma—blood with the corpuscles removed. To stop this waste, you must stop this catarrh. A course of treatment with Pe-ru-na never fails to do this.

City Court Docket.

The City Court convened at the City Hall, Monday afternoon at two o'clock. A goodly number of people were present as there were three or four cases to come before the court.

The first was the case of Calvin Dean, colored, charged with "breach of peace."

Dean failed to appear and from the evidence heard Judge DeHuy gave him $5 and cost.

The case of H. C. Murray vs. Jonas Wilson followed. Murray pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $5 and cost. Mr. Wilson was present to defend himself. All of the witnesses testified.

Mr. Wilson acted as his own lawyer and made a short and pointed speech.

Judge DeHuy said "While Mr. Wilson was not exactly innocent, still I am of the opinion that the imposing of a fine would not be justifiable. He was acquitted."

James Kasey was before the Honorable Judge charged with drunkenness and indecent exposure of person. He did not wish to stand trial, but desired the lightest fine imposed. Judge DeHuy asked him, "Are you guilty?" "From what I hear I am." The Judge said, "The charge is a serious one, and the lowest possible fine would be $10 and cost."

He wanted to go home and work the fine out at intervals but the court remanded him to jail.

Humanity in turkeys.

"There's a good deal of human nature in a turkey," said a farmer. "The other day while I was settin in the barn door one of my turkeys come yerkin along and peekin right and left and finally spied a rag on the ground that every turkey had been travelin over for a week. Turkey picked it up and slatted it out. That minute every turkey in the yard started for him. He run. It evidently struck him all of a sudden that he had got hold of suthin that was mighty valuable. He run, and he dodged, and he ducked, and he run some more. Every few minutes some one of them turkeys would get him by the wattles or else by the rag, and there would be a tug of war. And at last another turkey got the rag away, and then there was another chase. Guess them darn fool turkeys would have been runnin the fat off themselves the next day if I hadn't set the dog on 'em."

"That's just the way with a turkey. Let any other one in the flock get hold of suthin, and every one of the blamed fools will start for him or her and run till they fairly drop."

"And, as I have said, there is a good deal of human nature right there."—Lewiston Journal.

THE OHIO RIVER.

Many of Its Picturesque Features of the Past Are Gone.

The Ohio is no longer the beautiful river it once was. It flowed in majestic curves and sweeps through a limitless paradise. The glory of that river in the barbaric splendor of an autumn day was beyond description. Robbed from the Alleghenies to the Mississippi in her gorgeous fabric of maple and sycamore, which everywhere drooped down to the stately flood, shimmering, bending in her course with considerable and majestic dignity, a trip on one of the brightly painted steamboats was the event of a lifetime. There was also a dignity in the steamboats. They did not pant and rattle like a locomotive, nor were they silent like an ocean steamer. The long, huge steam cylinders, with deliberation and a soft though pervading sound, blew huge clouds of steam into the air. The river steamers were the Monte Carlos of the new world. Every one of them carried its contingent of professional gamblers, each of whom had a "bowtie" in his boot leg. These men, unmolested, traveled the year round between Pittsburgh and New Orleans, feeling the unwary and paying a percentage to the captains.

The Ohio is a noble river yet, though winding through forest denuded hills. The orchards and cornfields are attractive. It promised once to become the Rhine in vineyards, but the grapes were smitten with a rust which destroyed the crops until the attempt was abandoned. It will never be groved with feudal castles in ruins, but the groves will be replanted, and another century end will see it once more the "beautiful river."—Chicago Interior.

The Army in the Field.

The layman cannot easily realize the vast amount of material as to food and ammunition demanded by an army in the field. A few facts and figures as to this may aid to make it more tangible. Each man requires, at a minimum, three pounds and a half of food per day. Each animal should have at least 20 pounds of food in countries where grazing is not abundant. If we take, for purposes of estimate, only 15 pounds required to supply each animal, leaving five pounds to be gathered from the country by grazing and otherwise, we assume a quantity that may be considered a minimum.

An army of 150,000 men would require about 50,000 animals for transportation of artillery, camp equipment, ammunition, food, hospital and medical equipment. There should not be less than 30,000 cavalry. There should not be less than 10,000 animals available at all times to supply losses. This makes a total of 90,000 animals to be fed. With this as a basis we see that the daily demands would be for the men 525,000 pounds and for the horses 1,350,000 pounds, or an aggregate of 1,875,000 pounds. This is equal to something more than 830 tons per day. —Captain Zallinski in Harper's Weekly.
